

'The Luvvies', which will be presented as a dramatised play-reading, allows us to sit in on a quiz-night organised by and for the members of local drama groups. As team members rack their brains for the answers the language sometimes gets a bit ripe but Eileen's swear box ensures that all those responsible for verbal infelicities pay for their misdemeanours – especially as the purpose of the swear box is to raise money for the church!

'Mission Impossible' follows the progress of a dynamic "consultant" brought in by a package holiday company to wring a new "Company Mission Statement" out of a reluctant group of uninspired company employees. As Angela says, "I'm sure we'll produce great results". See if you agree with her.

In 'Last Tango in Little Grimley', we join the members of another village drama group reviewing the failure of their last production and searching for something that will put "bums on seats". Can the others be persuaded to share Gordon's view that "The only thing that really sells tickets these days is Sex"?
